Status on Jackson County Health and Human Services

We here at Jackson County Health and Human Services have seen and experienced the destruction these wildfires have caused our communities, and we are devastated by the loss. Our thoughts are with our staff and our communities that have been impacted. We are supporting the emergency effort.

Jackson County Health and Human Services is currently at a Level 2 Evacuation, Be Set. Jackson County Health and Human Services is open but encourages the community to call before arriving for services. If the services you need can be postponed, that would be best at this time. Jackson County Syringe Exchange Program will be closed today.

Please check the Jackson County website or Facebook page for updates.

During this time, it is critical to be aware of the fire danger near where you live and if your neighborhood has been assigned to an evacuation level. You can find more information on the Jackson County Emergency Management website <https://jacksoncountyor.org/emergency/>. It is also important to sign up for Citizen Alert; this system enables emergency personnel to provide you with critical information quickly, such as evacuation notices. You can sign-up online <https://member.everbridge.net/index/1332612387832182#/signup>.

It is best to be prepared to leave your home and leave when officials declare that it is no longer safe to shelter in place. Prepare by putting together a grab bag or emergency supply kit. These kits should include clothes, important documents, food and water, medication or medical supplies and masks. It is ideal to have enough supplies for two weeks.
